BY JOSEPH HATTON.

Amongst my breakfast things, and newspapers, and magazines, and letters are several missives which have come back to the Highgate House, Waterloo, some concluding that they only cried "Scotland for Ever," and others as firmly declaring that they sang "Scots Wha Hae" as they smote the enemy. Since one is rather in a literary than a militant mood, and with very much of the war song in the execution for reminiscence, I hope I may be forgiven for recalling Carlyle and Wordsworth on the merits of the poem itself. I find the two opinions contrasted in one of my little chamber books, "The Heroism of Lord Byron," by the "Progressive Review." "Why should we speak," says Carlyle, "of 'Scots Wha Hae' w' Wallace Bleed" since all know of it from the king to the meanest of his subjects? This dithyrambic was composed on horseback; in riding in the middle of the tempest, to the wildest of Mallovaly Moor, with Mr. Syme, who observing the poet's looks forbore to speak—judiciously enough; a man composing 'Bruce's Address' might be unsafe to trifle with. Doubtless this stern hymn was sung by Burns; but to the external ear it should be sung with the throat of the whirlwind. So long as there is warm blood in the heart of Scotchmen or man it will move in fierce throes; and this war ode will never believe that we ever written by any pen." After all, as I said, they are very much alike, the writers and poets in all ages. You are inclined to think otherwise sometimes when you hear yourself, what great men are capable of writing of other. Mrs. Hemans was sitting with Wordsworth on a bank overlooking Rydal Water, when she said, "Mr. Wordsworth, do you not think 'Scots Wha Hae' has been a good deal overrated, especially by Mr. Carlyle, who calls it the noblest lyric in the language?" "I am delighted to hear you say that question," was the poet's reply — "overrated! — trash — stuff — miserable inanity! without a thought! without an image!" Then he recited the piece in a strain of unspeakable scorn, and concluded with a "da capo" of "Scots Wha Hae" stuff.

"A Good Book."

"All a Matter of Time."

It is natural for old men to cherish their chief pleasures in memory. Especially in old countries we are tempted to look for our great pleasures in those of our youth. It is not so with you; you would think America worth to indulge in this kind of mental pessimism concerning the work. And yet at the St. James' Hotel, Mr. Park Godwin, an English journalist, remarked that the figures in our literature half a century ago were Cooper, Fitz Greene Halleck, Alfred Bryan, and others—he confessed as if he would say to the English Authors:—"Are you producing men as good as those of them?" What a halo the past produces on a man who was little or nothing in his generation! Mr. Godwin, in his recollections of the early days of the "Evening Post," which is still one of the most literary American papers, said that regular Bret Harte was a man who regularly drew a salary, but rarely wrote. Another reporter was Walt Whitman. We had also a young man, Browne on our staff who became known as Al. I do not know how far he has been reported as having been a reporter of some repute. These are names which are as local in England as in America. Mr. Godwin did not venture to say that the English literature was not equal to that which had gone before; but he talked much as Englishmen are apt to do of the past and the present. He elaborated the theory of evolution. He said, "but is there such a thing as the genius? Is not the product of the miracles unique and accountable? There is no science that can explain the existence of a man as Shakespeare or Goethe could enumerate one or two among the great representatives of the human race. At this point, I smile at this, sight of the lack of recent appreciation looking forward to the recognition of posterity. If you read between the lines of many an immortal "celebrity at home" you may find a more or less of the same thing.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

As will be seen from our telegraphic columns, the Greek main line of defence has utterly collapsed, after prolonged and fierce fighting at Mati, and should Edhem Pasha make quick use of his overwhelming superiority in cavalry, the retreating Hellenes will not reach the shelter of the mountains forming their second line of defence without suffering terrible losses. Even as it is, the hurried evacuation of Larissa without making any stand there indicates very clearly that the defeat at Mati amounted to a rout. Larissa is a place of immense strategic importance, commanding both the Thebanian railways and the port of Volo, whence the Greek forces were fed with reinforcements and supplies. It is further stated that the Greek force which invaded Epirus and appeared to be carrying all before it has met with a heavy reverse. Two alpine-hammer blows have thus been struck simultaneously, and, as the Greek army is the courage of the Greek soldiers, it is to be hoped that the Athens Government will recognize the stern logic of events and save fruitless slaughter by at once negotiating for peace.

It is not necessary to have any particular sympathy for the Turk in order to perceive that the Greeks are merely reaping as they have sown, and their attempts to cast the blame for the outbreak of the war upon Turkey are as dishonest as they are clumsy. Let us just review the events which led to the outbreak of hostilities. Greece deliberately invaded Crete—a province of Turkey—in time of peace; she proclaimed the annexation of the island; she refused to withdraw her troops at the bidding of the Powers, even when Crete was guaranteed self-government and the withdrawal of the Turkish troops. Turkey, with admirable self-restraint, refused to regard this as necessitating an appeal to arms, but Greece, when the Powers would not condone her offence, proceeded to mass her army on the Turkish frontier. When Turkey sent troops there too, as an obviously necessary precaution, Greece allowed a band of irregulars to invade Turkish territory under the noses of the Greek commanders, if not under their direction. Still Turkey contented herself with driving the invaders back, and it was only when this state of things became intolerable that the Turkish Government was ordered to advance. Nevertheless, the foolish—the criminally foolish—English journalists and politicians who have been egging the Greeks on, have the impudence now that things are going badly for Greece, to assert that the Turk has all along been the aggressor. Upon these persons there now lies the burden of a terrible responsibility. They have pushed the Greeks to the brink of the precipice over which they are now falling, and not all their ravings against the Turks, who never wanted to fight at all, and against the Powers, who have failed to keep Greek folly within bounds, will suffice to blind public opinion to the true character of the part they have played.

In their fit of sentimental hysteria they forget that they were not dealing with their fellow countrymen, who know exactly how much they are worth as the mouthpieces of public opinion, but with an excited foreign race, puffed up with national vanity, and utterly incapable of weighing the real value of all the sound and fury which was poured forth as the voice of England. Relying upon the "voices of England"—save the mark!—King George and his advisers went on until retreat became impossible. There is, however, yet one responsibility which is even graver than theirs. We refer to the line of action which has been followed throughout this crisis by Mr. Gladstone. The spectacle thereby afforded has been painful, not only to Unionists, but also to all that is best in the party which Mr. Gladstone led before he left it for what is pleased to term retirement. Regardless of the fact that he himself prevented war between Greece and Turkey in 1836 by a vigorous blockade of the Greek ports, Mr. Gladstone now professes unbounded indignation and contempt for the very idea of "coercing" that gallant little country. Safe in a notion of freedom, without official responsibility, he promotes the popularity of England abroad by abusing the two most powerful Sovereigns of the continent as tyrants, and, in his last confusion, he charges the Powers with having "driven the Greeks into Macedonia." The delight of the malignant old man at the failure of Lord Salisbury and the other statesmen of Europe to hold the Greeks back from their suicidal course is a lamentable thing to witness. It is, indeed, not too much to say that if Mr. Gladstone had only kept silence or said anything of what his powerful influence could have done if he had used it on the side of peace, as he did in '86—during the recent crisis there would have been no war.

There was one highly instructive incident in the proceedings of the recent conference of the Independent Labour Party. Mr. Tom Mann, who is nothing if not thoroughgoing, proposed to change the name of the party to one which should plainly express that the party is a Socialist organization. Mr. Mann is of opinion that "the present name has served its purpose," and that, inasmuch as the members are Socialists, it is time they should adopt a Socialist title.

THE QUEEN'S REIGN.
Last night a few more details with regard to the celebration of the Queen's reign came to hand, apart from those given on another page. We subjoin the most important.

RECEPTION.—The Queen's reception on June 2nd, for the school children, and for the aged poor, and a dinner for the aged poor.

CRISTAL PALACE.—Great temperance demonstration and musical festival on July 1st.

RECEPTION.—Grand illumination of Victoria Club-house on Jubilee Day.

RECEPTION.—Great friendly society demonstration, followed by gala at Manor Farm on Jubilee Day, in aid of St. Anne's Home, and a cot in the G.N. Central Hospital.

RECEPTION.—Procession on June 2nd, for the school children, and for the aged poor, and a dinner for the aged poor.

RECEPTION.—Aid to the local hospitals and medical charities by 3 days' fete in Jubilee week on Lord Mansfield's estate.

RECEPTION.—Over 100 fete will be held in the valley of the Thames, and all the principal hills will be ablaze in the 2 counties on June 2nd, including Leith Hill, the Hogback, Minstead, Lancing, Petworth, and others.

BONOVOL EXERCISES.—Last evening it was decided by the occupants of houses bordering on the Borough route of the Royal procession to appoint an industrial deputation to wait upon Mr. H. Marks, M.P., at the House of Commons to-morrow evening, to urge the immediate introduction of the Bill.

DEATH OF A GYMNAST.
A WAIR, Mrs. Mary Ann, was yesterday on Aloysius Leo Raphael Marx, 161, St. Thomas's Hospital, who died in the operation for polypus.

DEATH OF A GYMNAST.—Aloysius Marx, professional strong man, stated that deceased was his adopted son, a witness saying he was up in the London streets years ago. He was an exceptionally strong lad, and had performed at the Empire, the Paragon, and other music halls up to quite recently. Witness could not tell deceased's real name, as his mother died when he was only 3. His father had been a good patient, and his father had been a good patient, and his father had been a good patient.

DEATH OF A GYMNAST.—Witness said he had always noticed that deceased breathed with difficulty. He had twice been operated upon successfully at Leicester, each time under an anæsthetic. On Thursday, when he was first operated upon, he was in the out-patient's department when he was informed of his death.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE.—Dr. Babbington, house surgeon, said the operation was to remove a growth from the back of the pharynx. The patient arrived at the hospital at 2.40 p.m., and the administration of chloroform was proceeded with 10 minutes after Mr. Pattison had examined himself that the boy was a good patient, and that his heart was sound. The operation had been performed, and the patient was coming round, when Dr. Pattison noticed signs of heart failure. Witness and others endeavoured to restore him, but their efforts were unavailing. Dr. Babbington said he thought he saw himself that deceased was a fit subject for an anæsthetic, and about 3 or 4 drachms of chloroform were administered; of this the patient would probably inhale about 4 or 5 per cent. Death took place about a quarter of an hour from the moment the chloroform was first administered, and artificial respiration was resorted to for three-quarters of an hour.—By the Coroner.

DEATH OF A GYMNAST.—He had been chloroformed in 20 cases, and this was the first fatal case. Dr. Babbington, recalled, said the deceased was suffering from a growth of the pharyngeal tissues. No doubt the operations referred to at Leicester were for polypus of the nose, which was a vastly different disease. Death was due to heart failure. He heart was strong. Mr. Marx expressed his belief that deceased was a boy better than himself. Deceased was earning 34s a week, and by his death witness was rendered almost homeless.—Dr. Pattison, re-called, said the result of giving less chloroform would have been that the patient would have succumbed to shock.—Inquiry Journal.

Harley had occupied since she left Mrs.
Toll's service was found to contain 2 boxes and a trunk packed with linen, 6 white jackets and a dress shirt with hanging buttons. Waleman, who was in the service of prosecutor until last Friday, had admitted that he had been in the room. It was also stated that one of the girls was about to be married. When charged both cried a good deal, and begged to be forgiven.—Remanded.

SERVANT THROWN UNDER A CART.

Benjamin William Wynn, 26, of Little

Brompton, was charged on remand

with being drunk and disorderly and as-

saulting P.S. Satterfield. Mr. Dutton

said: The evidence showed that on the 5th ult., prisoner was creating a disturbance in Great Chapel-st., Westminster.

P.C. 92 A remonstrated, and endeavoured

to persuade prisoner to go away, but without success. Seeing the disturbance, the

sergeant went to the assistance of the constable, and accused was taken into custody.

For some distance prisoner walked quietly,

but when they got abreast of a cart, and

with mounds, he became angry and struck

the sergeant in the chest, causing him to fall against the wheel of the cart. Unable to recover himself, the officer then fell to the ground, face downwards, and one of

the wheels passed over his right leg, and

up his back. Happily the driver of the

cart in front saw the officer fall, and rushing to the horse's head, backed the cart

at once. The sergeant's hands were also bruised by the horse's hoofs. He was picked up, and conveyed to Westminster

Hospital, although no bones were broken.

He is still on the sick list.—Mr. Dutton,

on prisoner's behalf, said he deeply regretted the occurrence. It was an atro-ciously cowardly thing to do, but he hoped

his worship not to believe that because of

No; nothing.—P.C. 92 T said he pursued prisoner, and then, when he was in the middle of the street, he was seized by a man, who used his belt, 40s., or 14s. and a month respectively.

A FLUCKY LAD.

William Lee, 25, of Little

Brompton, was charged on remand

with being drunk and disorderly and as-

saulting P.S. Satterfield. Mr. Dutton

said: The evidence showed that on the 5th ult., prisoner was creating a disturbance in Great Chapel-st., Westminster.

P.C. 92 A remonstrated, and endeavoured

to persuade prisoner to go away, but without success. Seeing the disturbance, the

sergeant went to the assistance of the con-

stable, and accused was taken into custody.

For some distance prisoner walked quietly,

but when they got abreast of a cart, and

with mounds, he became angry and struck

the sergeant in the chest, causing him to

fall against the wheel of the cart. Unable

to recover himself, the officer then fell to

the ground, face downwards, and one of

the wheels passed over his right leg, and

up his back. Happily the driver of the

cart in front saw the officer fall, and rushing to the horse's head, backed the cart

at once. The sergeant's hands were also

bruised by the horse's hoofs. He was picked up, and conveyed to Westminster

Hospital, although no bones were broken.

He is still on the sick list.—Mr. Dutton,

on prisoner's behalf, said he deeply regretted the occurrence. It was an atro-

ciously cowardly thing to do, but he hoped

his worship not to believe that because of

Even the small-growing things, such as nemophila, phacelia, Virginia stocks, and scarlet linnæa, should be thinned to from 12 in. to 6 in. apart, according to the nature and condition of the soil. Another section of stronger-growing annuals, such as godetia, tricolour chrysanthemum, mignonette, clarkia, candytuft, and Limnanthus longicaulis, should be allowed from 1 in. to 10 in. of space, and the thinning should be done before the plants begin to crowd each other, and if it has to be done in dry weather give the plants a good watering first, and, if possible, scatter a little rich compost among the plants afterwards. No one who has tried this plan will regret the small amount of trouble which it entails. The grower calculates his trouble too nicely will not be entitled to a front seat when results are counted up.

HOPS OF STRAWBERRIES

should now be thoroughly cleaned from weeds, and if the slugs are likely to be troublesome give a sprinkling of soot or lime between the rows, and mulch with leafy litter to conserve the moisture in the land, and make a clean bed for the fruit to rest on when ripe.

INSECTS ON FRUIT TREES AND ROSES.
After these cold winds insects will be active as the weather changes. The cold winds check the growth of the trees and there is something about the trees of checked growth which the green fly appears to like. At the beginning of the season the best insecticide is tobacco powder dusted among the foliage of roses and fruit trees. Distributors of various patterns and prices may be obtained from the seed shops, and if taken care of they will last a long time.

GREENHOUSE.

Prick out seedling cypripediums in cones of light, rich soil, and keep in the warmest end of the house. Shade from hot sunshine by laying sheets of paper over the boxes till the roots get to work. Sow a few Chinese primulas for early blooming. Cover with sand, and place a square of glass over the top of the pots, or cover with moss till the seeds show signs of germination. Select some of the strongest of the spring-struck sonae polar-goniums to grow for blooming in winter in 5-inch pots. Don't turn anales or heaths out of the house as soon as they have done blooming if they are wanted to flower next year. These plants require good cultivation all through the season, and should not be placed outside till the young wood is getting firm in July.

WINDOW GARDENING.

Cactuses will now be showing newer buds. A few of the earliest varieties may be in flower. Give water more freely now. Keep pelargoniums free from insects. Shift on young fuchsias. Give weak stimulants to musk and do not expose it to hot sunshine.
